Ask your team why residents leave.

Then ask the residents.

The two lists barely overlap.

Both lists describe the same departures.

One is full of things you could not control.
The other is full of things you could.

They say: life circumstances. Residents say: rent.

One of those you get to talk about early.

They say: nothing we could do. Residents say: maintenance.

Repairs that were reported and then went quiet.

They say: they just moved on. Residents say: nobody listened.

That one is free to fix and nobody bills for it.

Exit surveys ask after they have gone. Satisfaction surveys ask on a date unrelated to any lease.

Neither asks the month the decision is being made.

WHAT IT COSTS

01 Retention: 60% to 57%.

02 About 43% of units turn every year.

03 Roughly $4,000 for each one that does.

Call the last five residents who left. Ask what would have changed their mind.

Compare it with what your team assumed.

If those two lists differ, that gap is your renewal rate.

No software required to run this test.

SAMBHAV JAIN